About this booklet

The second part is the Policy Wording which sets out the detailed terms, conditions and exclusions of the Policy.

Because the Insurer does not know the Insured's own personal circumstances, the Insured should treat any advice in this booklet as purely general in nature. It does not consider the Insured's objectives, financial situation or needs. The Insured should carefully consider the information provided with regard to their personal circumstances to decide if it is right for them.

When this booklet becomes a Product Disclosure Statement

Whether an Insured is a retail client is determined in accordance with the Corporations Act 2001 (Cth) and Corporations Regulations (Cth).

Updating our PDS

The information in this PDS is current at the preparation date however it might change over time.

When the Insurer makes a change that is materially adverse, either a supplementary PDS (SPDS) or a new PDS will be provided at renewal.

If the Insurer makes a change to information in the PDS that is not materially adverse, the Insurer may notify the Insured of the change and may not immediately update the PDS. However, the Insured can contact the Insurer for a copy of the change at no charge by the Insurer.

For more information or to make a claim

Important information

In this first part of the booklet we explain important information about this Policy including how we'll protect your privacy and how to make a complaint or access our dispute resolution service.

Duty to take care not to make a misrepresentation

By law, the Insured must take reasonable care not to make a misrepresentation. A misrepresentation includes a statement that is false, partially false, or that does not fairly reflect the truth.

This means, prior to entering into an insurance contract, giving the Insurer true, complete and accurate answers to their questions, including where the Insured provides information on someone else's behalf. The Insurer uses the Insured's answers to decide whether to insure them and on what terms. If any of the Insured's answers are misleading, incomplete, inaccurate or fraudulent the Insurer may reduce or refuse to pay a claim, cancel their policy or treat it as if it never existed. If the Insured does not understand a question, they are unsure how to answer or if anything is unclear, please call the Insurer.

If the Insured is renewing their insurance, the Insured needs to carefully review the information provided in their renewal documents and check that it is true, complete and accurate. If any of the information is incorrect or has changed, the Insured must let the Insurer know before renewal. Some changes may impact the Insurer's offer of renewal terms. If the Insured does not understand a question, the Insured is unsure how to answer or if anything is unclear, please call the Insurer before they renew the Insured's policy. If the Insurer does not hear from the Insured and they renew their policy, the Insurer will take that to mean that the information provided in their renewal document is true and correct and that nothing has changed. If the Insured does not tell us about anything that has changed, or if they do not take reasonable care not to make a misrepresentation then the Insurer may reduce or refuse to pay a claim, cancel their policy or treat it as if it never existed.

Duty of Disclosure

Before the Insured enters into an insurance contract, they have a duty under the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (Cth) to tell the Insurer anything that they know, or could reasonably be expected to know, may affect the Insurer's decision to insure the Insured and on what terms.

The Insured has this duty until the Insurer agrees to insure them.

The Insured has the same duty before they renew, extend, vary or reinstate an insurance contract.

The Insured does not need to tell the Insurer anything that:

- reduces the risk the Insurer insures the Insured for; or
- is common knowledge; or
- the Insurer knows or should know as an insurer; or
- the Insurer waives the Insured's duty to tell QBE about.

If the Insured does not tell the Insurer something

If the Insured does not tell the Insurer anything they are required to, the Insurer may cancel the Insured's contract or reduce the amount they will pay the Insured if they make a claim, or both.

If the Insured's failure to tell the Insurer is fraudulent, they may refuse to pay a claim and treat the contract as if it never existed.

The cost of this Policy

Premium is what the Insured pays the Insurer for this Policy and it is made up of the amount the Insurer has calculated for the risk and any taxes and government charges.

When calculating the Insured's premium the Insurer take a number of factors into account, including:

(a) The type of Business the Insured operates, which sections you elect to take cover under and the Sum Insured that is relevant to the Insured's Business. In addition, the Insured's claims history may impact the Premium.

(b) If the Insured elects to have a higher or lower Excess where this is an option.

(c) For plant and equipment, mobile Machines, static Machines and Motor Vehicles the type, age, location and use of these Machines and/or Motor Vehicles, along with the age and experience of the operator or driver may impact the Premium.

(d) For Broadform Liability (Section 7) the turnover of the Business, the number of staff, wage roll, engagement of contractors and/or labour hire personnel may also impact the Premium.

Information relating to premium calculation

The list of factors in 'The cost of this Policy' is not exhaustive. The Insurer may take other factors into account and add or remove factors. The importance the Insurer places on the factors they use to calculate the premium and how the factors combine, all affect calculation of the premium. Some factors will not affect all components of the premium and not all components of the premium may be subject to discounts in the same way or at all.

How the factors combine to calculate premium may also be impacted according to the Insured's circumstances and other underwriting considerations. The premium determined by a combination of the factors may be adjusted up or down to reflect the Insured's circumstances and underwriting considerations including the risk being insured and the value of any claims. An adjustment like this may increase or decrease the premium from the combination of factors and may limit discounts.

Minimum premium and the Insured's previous year's premium are commercial factors that may limit premium increases and decreases from the combination of the factors and any discounts. A minimum premium is the least amount of premium the Insurer will accept for the insurance and factors and any discounts will not reduce the premium below minimum premium. The Insured's previous year's premium is taken into account on renewal and may limit premium increases and decreases from the combination of the factors and limit discounts.

The premium the Insurer calculates according to the factors, the Insured's circumstances and other commercial factors, including taxes and government charges, will be shown on the Insured's Policy Schedule.

Cooling-off period

If the Insured changes their mind about their policy and have not made a claim, the Insured can cancel it within 21 days of the start or renewal date and we will give the Insured a full refund. If the Insured cancels their policy in these circumstances, the Insured will have no cover under the policy.

To cancel their Policy within the cooling-off period, contact your financial services provider.

The Insured can also cancel their Policy outside the cooling-off period, see 11.18 'Cancellation of the policy'.
